"After years of research and development, we are thrilled to finally bring HyperMotion to life," said Matt Bilbey, Creative Director. "This technology makes the pitch feel alive and helps players feel more connected with the action, making players' skills in the game feel more intuitive and real-life."

Added Marco Villalobos, Director of Match Physics: "Every decision a player makes in a match impacts their game. The first time they receive a pass, or when they move into an offensive position, or when they perform a long range shot, all of these decisions affect the way they play, react and decide. HyperMotion puts players in those critical moments, making them more realistic, while helping them develop and improve their skills." In addition to adding HyperMotion to gameplay, the game is the first to completely overhaul the match view to feature the first-ever official 3D match view in a FIFA game. This new feature allows for deeper analysis and video replay, as well as improved visibility and fan engagement. Watch the documentary to learn more about how HyperMotion was created and to see footage of players during real-life tracking sessions. "The studio went all out to collect player data from hundreds of players and hundreds of hours of video data, then to create a new match engine which utilizes the collected data to deliver the pitch feeling closest to the real world ever," said Alen Razumovic, Producer. "As an added bonus we are thrilled to release this new feature to the PlayStation community, who can finally judge for themselves how close this real-world match is to the reality!" FIFA 22 is available now for PlayStation 4, Xbox One and PC. For more information, please visit: www.fifa.com
