New features in Microsoft Office 2013:- Messaging: Write and send instant messages using.Q: Android: UnsupportedOperationException for setText() with changing layout The goal is to have a multiline EditText that can input a text with dynamic line wrap, and when the user presses Enter, the EditText should shift the layout to show the new text. I have a TextView that get's updated upon receiving new data from a server, so as long as the EditText is empty, it works fine. The setText() function keeps the layout and updates the text. However, when the user presses Enter, I encounter an UnsupportedOperationException java.lang.UnsupportedOperationException: setText with changing layout Here's the EditText: Does anyone know what I could be doing wrong? A: The solution is to use setSelection() instead of setText(). That way the layout shift works as expected. Arginine metabolism by the brain. Nitric oxide synthase (NOS) is present in several regions of the brain. The aim of this study was to determine what influence the arginine and its metabolites could have on the nitric oxide activity, in particular, its capacity to modulate the NMDA receptor-mediated changes in intracellular Ca^{2+} concentration ($[Ca^{2+}]i$).
