
Borland Delphi 7.0 Enterprise FR Serial Key

Here is an old issue. I was going to try to register a product there: <http://www.borland.com/support/default.asp?c=UKJCQQXGKQ1&l=en> But when I went there the following was the message I saw: Borland.com Access denied You were denied access to Borland.com because you have already registered. When you register, you will receive notification to stop registering. Go to My Account to stop future registrations. Thank you for your service. I think we were getting a bad a service, in this case, because for instance I could register Delphi 5 without any problems. Instead of giving a user the ability to register it once he has already registered it, they should give him the ability to register it multiple times. I think they're probably worried they're going to be sued. Maybe they should even give him the chance to participate in the Delphi development community (it's free). I don't think even Borland knew how much of a headache it was going to cause them. Rgds. Michael. We've just upgraded to Borland 7.0, and for the most part everything is working fine, except for one major defect: when using the Borland Pascal 7.0 compiler in IDEA, using the JRE plugin, there is sometimes a 20-second to 30-second delay at start up, and the IDE spends the time getting the input token to work properly. I've encountered this problem only once or twice, but there could be worse things happening when upgrading software. In the meantime, the Plugin works, but this makes it unusable for me. Has anyone else had this same experience?

Borland Delphi 7.0 Enterprise FR Serial Key

Btw, I'm a fan of Borland software and it's still one of my most favourite products (and even if there's no free Delphi anymore I will still purchase it). However, I'm against 'license' in general (other than that for abusive/pirate users/customers that do damage to others, but this kind of question concerns the first case only), so I'm a bit surprised/disappointed by Borland's decision. Cheers, David Thanks David, I'm glad you take the subject seriously and have a good laugh at the same time. I don't find the problem nearly so funny either since I'm sure I'll end up with a terrible license that I am forced to sign onto. The idea of Borland finding out people are using it in a business capacity is too frightening to me and violates the principle of piracy itself. Hopefully I will be pleasantly surprised with the final product, though I don't expect Borland to deliberately create license features that make it more difficult to use. Martyn I don't understand your problem here. 1) AFAIK at least Delphi 7 runs fine without registration. 2) You have a period of 30 days or so before registering the product is mandatory. On the other hand only being able to install it 10 times and then having to call every second time is IMHO too restrictive. As developers we tend to have a need of installing it more often than that. Also you are providing all your details and need to use your Borland Online Account. In my view this limit should not be there at all. Borland can monitor the registrations themselves and take actions (like calling or sending email) when they have the notion of abuse. But it should not be the customers who need to prove by default that they are not abusing the license. What kind of relationship is this! Jan 5ec8ef588b
