Data was collected using a cross-sectional questionnaire that collected information from teachers on their level of TPACK skills. The questionnaire was composed of three sections: a. Demographic data b. The perception of online teaching and assessment c. Suggestions to develop TPACK skills. Prior to the survey, a pilot test was conducted to ensure the reliability and accuracy of the questionnaire. The questionnaire was filled out by the trainers of the trainings for both the hybrid and the live mode trainings. After the completion of the two trainings, a total of 75 questionnaires were returned, of which 69 (92%) of the questionnaires were filled-in and submitted. The data analysis was performed with the IBM Statistical Package for the Social Sciences (IBM SPSS software) version 22, 2014 using the descriptive statistics. A majority of the teachers in the workshop were female with the age range of 29 to 49 years old. Besides this, most of the teachers were married with more than 10 years of teaching experience. Their teaching experience ranged between 1 to 15 years with the majority being teachers with 5 to 10 years of experience. Before attending this workshop, most of the teachers had access to online assessment and learning systems through a web application, which was prior to the introduction of MOOC in Malaysia. Regarding the perception of the online teaching and assessment, most of the teachers stated that online teaching and assessment was a promising method to allow teachers to deliver their content and assessments with flexibility and the aid of modern technology. Regarding suggestions to develop their TPACK skills, most of the teachers considered the TPACK skill based training workshop they attended as a good introduction to TPACK skill development. In addition, the majority of the teachers also considered online teaching and assessment as an effective mode of working and learning.

In fact, as far as the body is concerned, "antioxidants" and "free radicals" are one and the same. In a short period of time, your body will absorb the vitamin C or E from your food, and then combine the free radicals in your system with it. The result is that both your body's free radical production and the free radical levels in your body are cut in half. Again, more antioxidant vitamins and more free-radical-fighting antioxidants means more protection from premature aging and disease.
