 The BOM Import portion of the program creates a Table for every layer in the drawing file. The two columns are "layer" and "short string." The top row is a header for the text object containing the layer name. For each text object a spreadsheet is generated. We used the excel link button to change the cell size as required. The code snippet "Remove Blank Text Objects" removes blank text objects from the list. When you quit the spreadsheet it will close AutoCAD. The program displays the name of the table in the upper left hand corner. The Table is also listed in the Tools menu under Cracked Bill of Materials With Keygen. When you select the "Bill of Materials Crack Mac" object, it will be created with an Excel spreadsheet. (Currently it only works with.DWG files.) Each layer is listed with a short name and is sorted by ascending layer name. The short string is only used to separate two values on a single line. It can also be used to link parts of one line and another line. The short string is used to pull parts of text from a layer. The "short string" is optional. If left blank, the text will be combined with the next text object. When the text objects are read, each word is converted into a lower case text object. If all the letters in the text object are uppercase letters, only the first letter is converted. Only the first text object in the list is used. The text objects are split into a list of layers by the first text object's "layer" property. If there are text objects in the same layer, they are considered together. All text objects in a layer are listed before the layer name. The table will include the layer name in the top row. (See table example below.) The top line of each spreadsheet is automatically deleted if it has no text. If all the text is removed, the cell with no text, (and its associated table) will be listed in the "tools" menu. The table in the "tools" menu has some automatic functions.
