This is my example code: temp = Table[Plot[Sin[x]^2, {x, 0, 4}], {i, 20}] For i=0, the plot is on the right side; i=1, the plot is below it; i=2, the plot is above it, and so on. But I would like to have the plots on the left side, and to be aligned. How can I do that? A: If you change temp = Table[Plot[Sin[x]^2, {x, 0, 4}], {i, 20}] to temp = Table[Plot[Sin[x]^2, {x, 0, 4}, PlotLabel -> i], {i, 20}] and then use Show[temp] you will get the desired output. If you can get the Sims to have fun doing the things they need to do to survive, then it could be a fun experience. The Sims 4 has a goal system that makes it easier to accomplish specific goals. It's called the "Imperative System". The core idea of the imperative system is that the Sims have a goal for themselves and they need to accomplish that goal. The objective is to provide a context-sensitive system that guides Sims to reach their goals. A few rules for this: Goals should be tied to a desired outcome. You will be able to get
